MURPHY READING ROOM.

The Enterprise gives Promise of Success—Concert and Torch-light Pic-nic.

A committee was appointed by the Murphy organization on the evening of the 3d inst., to canvass the propriety of opening a public reading room in Troy. The committee took hold of the enterprise with a zest and a determination to succeed that augurs well, and there is now little or no doubt of success. The members of the committee met in the Methodist church last Thursday afternoon to consult and perfect plans for consummating the idea. It was agreed that three sub-committees should be appointed to carry out the initial plans proposed, viz: T. H. Harris, F. C. Calk, N. C. Dryden and J. C. Elmore to raise a moneyed subscription; Mrs. Hickok, Mrs. Woodson and Mrs. Perkins to arrange for a concert, the proceeds to go toward fitting up the room; and Dr. Noel, T. H. Harris and Jo. Birkhead to arrange for a torch-light pic-nic and promenade, where cake, ice-cream, lemonade and other refreshments will be sold for raising funds for the reading room. The committee then adjourned to meet at the residence of Dr. Noel on the following Saturday evening to hear the reports of the sub-committees.

The committee met according to agreement, and Mr. Harris reported that he had raised about forty dollars by subscription. Mrs. Hickok said her committee had seen Mrs. Woolfolk, Prof. Wollank and others, enlisting them in the cause, and that they would be ready any evening the committee might select to give the concert. It was decided to have the concert on Tuesday evening next, at the Public school hall. The committee on torch-light pic-nic made an encouraging report, and decided on Friday night, the 20th.

The proposed reading room will be free to all who wish to avail themselves of its advantages. The reading matter will consist of daily, weekly and monthly periodicals. It is also probable that the Troy Social Library will be kept in the reading room. The games of chess and checkers will be allowed, but no cards. It will be seen at a glance that such an enterprise will be of vast interest to the citizens of the town, to visitors spending a few days in our midst, and to our country friends who are frequently called to town, and who have no place to spend the time while waiting for work or other business that brings them here. They can step into the reading room and spend an hour or more very profitably reading the latest news of the day or looking over the market reports of the metropolitan dailies. But especially will it be a pleasant evening resort for the young ladies and gentlemen of our town, and they will readily avail themselves of its advantages.

Our citizens one and all should feel interested in the enterprise, and extend to the managers all the aid, pecuniary or otherwise, that they can afford. It will be money well invested, bread upon the waters that will return to them, and we feel confident that after the reading room has been in our midst six months or a year its advantages will appear so clear to all that they will take a pride and interest in perpetuating it.

REPRESENTATIVE.

Some parties are dissatisfied with the action of the county convention in the nomination of representative, and allege that fraud was used and that delegates to the convention were bought and paid for. There were 223 delegates in the convention, and the charges may apply to each one of them when made so recklessly as they have been. That the people of the county may know who were in the convention, what districts they represented, and how the votes were given for representative by these delegates, the following statement is compiled from the records of the convention. If any more charges of unfairness are made, it is but just to delegates in the convention that the charges should specify the particular delegate and district that was unfair, or was bought and paid for, so that all the delegates may not rest under a general charge of dishonesty. First, is given the school district;

second, names of delegates; third, the number of votes given at the primary meeting; fourth, the two ballots that were taken:

We confidently refer our readers to Foster's Hillside Nursery advertisement, to be found in another column. His extensive Hillside grounds are situated at Bowling Green, an easy day's drive from most parts of Lincoln county, where tree planters are cordially invited to examine his large stock of fruit and ornamental trees. His fruits, grown from the trees from which he grafts his young stock, are certainly very fine.

There was a temperance and Sabbath school picnic at Truxton on last Thursday. The attendance was large and the occasion one of general enjoyment. The Middletown cornet band furnished excellent music. The following speakers entertained the assemblage: Lucian Bibb of Montgomery City, on Sabbath schools; R. D. Walton, Rev. Shumate and Rev. Anderson, on temperance.
